And in the vindication of these great fundamental truths relating to negro inequality and his natural subordinate posiin the world, has displayed more boldness and power than tris same much-abus ed! ed and grossly misrepresented Stephen A. Donglas,

No man has ever uttered these, or any other truths, in this country, with more peril or hazard to himself. Whether in the Senate or on the hustings, whether at the South or the North-whether before party friends or Abolition mobs, he been silent. See him breasting the anado themis of the three thousand New England clergymen, burled against him for the defense of your rights under the Constitution-and say if it comes with a denounce him as an enemy to us or ours. Was there ever blacker ingratitude, since Adam's first great fall, than such demonstrations against such a man? Were I to remain silent while I hear them, and see him so unjustly slain by those who know not what they do, I should feel myself to be as guilty of innocent blood as those who stood by and held Stephen's clothes while he was stoned to death Whatever may be his opinions of popular sovereignty, or squatter sovereignty, or the right of self-government on the part of all organized communities-call it what you will-they are the same now that they have been always, the same that they were in 1856, when he was the favorite of the Georgia Democracy for the 25c Presidency. I thought of him then just as I do now. If others have changed their opinions since, he has not. It is one of the qualities about him that increases my admiration, that he is no time do server; he does not change with the popese ular current; he bends to no storm; maintains his fidelity and integrity to principle through woe as well us through The most manly exhibition of 2,00 Best & largest collection of apples named 50c moral courage and nerve this country do ever witnessed was his contest in Illinois tration so unnaturally and so unjustly brought in the rear, he fought the battle ture." do single-handed and alone, achieving a vic-laration of Independence upon the condiin this country. THE Chicago Times, says: "We have been called on by a gentleman whose busupon them for three days, or till they iness has carried him over a great part of Egypt and nearly the whole of the central counties of the State. He says that, in point of enthusiasm and excitement, the hard cider' and ·log cabin' days of 1840 are not to be compared with the feeling wherever he has been. In Egypt, of course, the enthusiasm is like the handle of a jug-all one side. In the centre there is no more rivalry, but for enthusiasm, activity, zeal and numbers, the gallant Democracy are awarded the palm even by their opponents. They raise the tallest poles, have the longest processions hold the most and largest meetings, shout the loudest, and are the most enthusiastic and in fact are so certain of an easy triumph that they taste in anticipation its sweets already The news from the centre and Egypt encourages us to anticipate 25,000, instead of only 15,000, majority
